Blue Jay Nursery School Alumni Are Now Going To College, Flying Planes

By RAYLYN PENNEY

For nearly a score of years a growing group of Carmel youngsters has called her "Miss Jay." And they have regarded her home in Hatton Fields Mesa with the kind of esteem children usually reserve for the fabricated worlds of Lewis Carroll, A. A. Milne and Johnny Gruelle.

She is Jay (Mrs. Walter E.) Tuthill, the Blue Jay Lady, operator of Blue Jay Nursery School, and her tribe of alumni by now includes a quantity of brides and college graduates. For next year will be her 20th of pre-school teaching.

Miss Jay's school is a spacious ground-floor classroom loaded with toys and trinkets and craft materials to challenge the mighty imaginations often found in small heads. But it wouldn't much matter if there were no classroom at all and Blue Jay students roamed the fields—which they often do also—because Miss Jay herself is the firm, gentle force that makes the school what it is.

A gracious, soft-spoken person, full of laughter for the joys and concern for the hurts of children, Jay Tuthill is typical of all the really talented people who work with pre-school youngsters. She is this and more, since she seems to have a heaven-bestowed gift for bringing out the best in the little folk.

For many youngsters, the long walk up the steep driveway to the big white house overlooking Carmel Bay marks the first trip into the "world," the first dry-run experiment with any kind of social intercourse.

They are not left adrift in the bewildering sea of permissiveness which blighted some of our nursery schools a decade or so ago. Instead, with insistent persuasion

Monday Last Day To Enter Arts, Crafts At Fair

Monday, August 7, is the last day that entry blanks for art and craft departments will be received by the Monterey County Fair, to be held this year August 23-27.

Professionals and amateurs compete in two separate art shows, but the department allows the hanging of only one oil or water color per exhibitor in each show. The sculpture class is open to all.

Prior to being included in the final judging, entries will be juried by the art committee and entrants will be immediately notified of rejections. This procedure, also employed by the crafts department, insures the fine quality of Fair displays.

This year, the crafts department offers classes in ceramics, jewelry, leather, metals, prints, textile decoration, stone cutting and polishing, weaving, woodworking, and other special classes for such as work in basketry, papier-mache, and mosaic.

Premium books, entry blanks, and information are available at the Fairgrounds, P. O. Box 1151, Monterey; telephone FRontier 2-5863.

Public Hearing On Aug. 16 On Three Gallery Use Permits

August 16 has been set as date for public hearing before the Carmel Planning Commission on aplication for use permits by three art organizations.

The Monterey Peninsula Chapter, American Federation of Arts, is asking for a use permit "to operate a non-profit educational and cultural institution for the purpose of fostering the arts through instructional programs and workshops" in their newly acquired building on First Avenue between Mission and San Carlos Streets, the former Forest Hills School, which is in the residence district.

The Laky Galleries wants a use permit to erect a directional-informational sign on San Carlos and Ocean Avenue, and the Galerie de Tours is making the same request but wants their sign on the corner of Lincoln and Ocean Avenue.

Carmel Property Owners Get Ten Cent Break In 41 Cent New JC Tax Rate

Carmel taxpayers will pay ten cents less per $100 valuation this year to educate students at Monterey Peninsula Junior College. Last night the junior college board of trustees adopted a $1,389,223 budget for 1961-62 with estimated income of $1,522,028 to be raised by a junior college tax of between 39-41 cents, according to unofficial estimates.

Last year the junior college tax for Carmel residents was 51 cents per $100 evaluation.

This year's rate will be 35 cents, plus eight-tenths of a cent for community services, and an additional several cents tax for certified and classified employes retirement benefits as yet unknown but not expected to increase the tax rate above 41 cents.

However, during the coming year taxpayers will be asked by college trustees to approve a bond issue for purchase of the college campus from Monterey Union High School District, cost $2,356,459. Last night's budget adopted by the college trustees contained a campus rental item of $118,000 for 1961-62. This amount will be subtracted from the total purchase price and reduce the amount to be raised by a bond issue in 1961-62 to $2,238,459.

Trustees before going to the public for the bond issue will ascertain whether or not further facilities must be provided for 2500 student enrollment in the near future, also if additional land shall be purchased. Both these items may be included in the bond issue in addition to the campus purchase price.

Last night trustees asked MPC President Frederick Huber to write Del Monte Properties Company to the effect that at this time the board can make no firm decision concerning the purchase of 20 acres adjacent to the campus. Previously trustees had made an offer of $10,000 per acre to Del Monte Properties. This offer appears to be unacceptable. Yesterday evening trustees discussed two possibilities, first, leasing the land from Del Monte, second, exchanging some of the present college property for an equal amount of Del Monte land. Final decision

School Board Adopts Xmas Tree Budget

Carmel Unified School District's board of education adopted its $1,718,950 budget for the 1961-62 school year following a public hearing last night.

The amount is expected to reduce the school's operations tax from $2.37 last year to $2.35 this, and, according to trustee Dr. Richard Snyder and other board members, "it looks as if the total net increase in all school taxes might be nil, or at the most go up only four or five cents."

Editor's Note: Two cents reduction in the operation tax will be eaten up in a 19 cent increase in total tax rate because of the addition of a new bond issue.

With the addition of personnel retirement tax, 11 cents, community service tax, 10 cents, several old bond issues and the new one, Carmel's tax rate will be $2.77, the rate for the Valley property owners, who have obligations carrying over from before their joining Carmel district, $3.02.

Because of re-evaluation of property, Carmel assessments have been doubled and even the same tax rate would mean twice the tax bill for most Carmel property owners. The re-evaluation yielded the school district $160,000. George Yates, whose term on the board expired last month, urged the board before he retired not to budget the entire $160,000.

"This is in effect a raise in the tax rate, without the people having a chance to vote on it," he pointed out. He reminded them that the people had cheerfully voted a 50 cent over-ride tax and new construction bond issue, and suggested that they should have consideration now.

Complaints around town failed to materialize at the budget hearing, unfortunately, since it would be better for the goodwill and support the schools and the board have always enjoyed, if the objections were aired before the board than to simmer and flare up for the election to renew the over-ride tax which is due next year.

Dr. Robert Newton, board member, spoke, he said, "in answer to some of the criticism which has been leveled at the board on this budget."

He pointed out that "we anticipate an enrollment increase of approximately 10 per cent. The long-term cost of school supplies and salaries has gone up 5 per cent per year in the past decade, and would ordinarily account for at least a 15 per cent budget increase, but the budget is up only 7 per cent" over three years ago.

Dr. Snyder said, "In comparison with last year there is no increase but actually a decrease on a per-student basis." He warned that other districts have given across-the-board salary increases to teachers and that Carmel, "in order to compete for superior teachers" will need to do the same next year. Critics of the action the board took in salting away a $75,000 undistributed reserve in this year's budget, Dr. Snyder indicated, should remember that the district will be facing a very tight situation next year in this respect, and will have use for all the reserves it can produce.

Malcolm Millard, attorney for Mission Ranch proprietor Bert Dienelt, stated yesterday that his client has not asked the County Board of Supervisors to review the County Planning Commission's denial of his request to rezone seven acres of the 29-acre Mission Ranch site from residential to limited commercial use. The Mission Ranch continues to operate as a non-conforming use in the residence zone.

Cecil "Pop" Smith informs us he has enjoyed modelling for Kay Rodgers' art class this past week. "It's easier to sit still the older you get," observes Carmel's octogenarian golfer who cheerfully greets friends he passes at a spry clip on daily jaunts about town.

We hate to harp—but—there should be pedestrian lane markings and warnings on Scenic Drive at the top of the steps above Reamer's Cove on Carmel Point.

Over the years the road has been resurfaced again and again until the top step is at least a foot and a half high and obscures small children coming up the steps from the view of approaching motorists. On the road there is absolutely no indication that a public approach immediately into the right hand traffic lane exists at this location hidden in cypress trees.

Motorists are absorbed with driving the narrow cliffside right of way. Although passing is possible, drivers in the left hand lane often prefer to back cars into the intersection of Ocean View Avenue and Scenic Drive rather than pass another car at the tip of the Point.

SPORT SHOP CARDS STILL PACE PONY LEAGUE

League Standings

Cardinals	7	0	1
Broncos	4	2	1
Giants	4	3	0
Dodgers	2	3	2
Navy	2	5	0
Braves	1	6	2

Bob Baugh's Sport Shop Cardinals continue to set a fast pace in the Carmel Pony League, moving three games in front following last week's play. The Sports clipped the Jade Tree Giants, 8 to 1, and edged the Carmel Builders Supply Dodgers, 4 to 3. Miya Miyamoto's Valley Broncos held the runner-up spot by holding off the Braves to earn a 9-9 deadlock.

A shaky Giant defense helped the Cardinals in their 8-1 victory as they took advantage of 10 miscues by the losers. Tim Head and Tim Mosolf teamed up to pitch six-hit ball against the Giants with Matt Little and Greg Jones throwing a seven-hitter for the Woolsey-Baxter gang. Exploding a good curve ball, Mosolf struck out 11 Giant swingers. In posting the 4-3 win over the Dodgers, the Cards had to fight off a determined seventh inning rally by the losers. George DuBets, Card hurler, was coasting along with a no-hitter until the final inning and his four-run bulge seemed more than enough for the victory. However, the scrappy Dodgers broke up the no-hitter on Craig Cunningham's single and filled the bases on a walk and another single by Howdy King. A sacrifice fly and a single by Rod Sibley produced three runs for the Dodgers, but the rally fell one short of pulling even with the winners. Craig Olsen, Card shortstop, topped the hitters in this one, collecting two blows in three trips to the plate. A fine running catch by Tim Taaffe was the fielding highlight of the game.

The Jade Tree Giants maintained a spot in the first division by clipping Howard Bucquet's Toy Shop Braves, 4 to 3, in one of the best games of the season. This was a thriller all the way with Greg Jones and Clint Macy putting on a fine pitching duel. Penn Rose, Brave outfielder, provided the power for his gang, blasting a two-run homer over the left field wall.

A new pitching record went into the Pony League books in the Dodger-Navy School tilt when Howdy King sent 16 Navy swingers back to the bench via the strikeout route. The little right-hander put on a brilliant pitching exhibition as he shut out the hard-trying Navy gang, 7 to 0. Walking only one man, King fashioned a classy one-hitter to post his fourth win of the season. Besides hurling a near-perfect game, King also showed his mates how to swing the bat, collecting a double and single in three trips to the plate.

Tonight's Pony League action matches the Jade Tree Giants with the Builders Supply Dodgers; Friday night, the Toy Shop Braves tackle the Navy School; and Saturday morning at 10:00 o'clock, the league-leading Sport Shop Cards take on the hustling Carmel Valley Broncos.

SECTION PLAYOFF AT VALLEY LL PARK SATURDAY

At 1:30 this Saturday afternoon, the Section Playoff between the winner of the Gilroy-Hollister Little League playoff and the Carmel Valley Pistons will take place at the Valley LL Park. The Carmel Valley lads earned their way into the playoff by whipping Carmel's San Carlos Realty in a two-out-of-three playoff. The winner of this Saturday's game will qualify for the big tournament at Greenfield where the winners from all the areas will meet to crown the 1961 Little League Champ.

A pair of Carmel Pine Cone softball performers are pulling the strategy strings for the champions from the Carmel Valley. Gordy Miyamoto and Jay Huffman, real favorites with Carmel fans when they cavorted in the Pine Cone Spangles, have guided the Valley Pistons to an amazing 19-1 record this season and they appear to have the stuff to pad the record a little more before the playoffs end.

Led by pitcher David Marvin, a fireballing righthander who has yet to taste defeat this season, the Valley nine is solid at all positions. A fine double play keystone combination of shortstop Steve Meadows and Melvin Miyamoto has been instrumental in producing an airtight inner defense throughout the season. Cliff Branch at first base and Randy Sinclair at third round out the classy infield. Catcher Bob Sinclair is one of the best in Little League circles and swings a powerful bat for the Pistons. Bob is also the number two pitcher on the squad. The Piston outfield is manned by Larry Leslie, Mitchell Cowan, and Jimmy Huffman. Managers Miyamoto and Huffman can go to the bench for reserve help from Mark Davies, Leslie Leslie, Rodrigo DeLeon, and Alex Neal.

In Carmel They All But Vote

By Marie Rowland, Animal Reporter

If you ever pass in Carmel a small Austin Healey sport car and see the grey muzzle of a very large Weimaraner draped over the front windshield, long ears flapping in the breeze, you'll recognize Spookie —85 pounds of grey hunting dog.

Beside Spookie, and driving the car, will be his beloved young master, Brenden Seaborn, high school senior.

Brenden was given Spookie just three months ago by his friend Bill Campbell, son of the veterinarian. Brenden and Bill attended Robert Louis Stevenson School together. So, when Spookie, friendless, neurotic and unloved, landed at Dr. Campbell's, it was quite natural that Bill should think of Brenden as a natural mender of broken Weimaraner hearts. Weren't Brenden's family, his mother, Cynthia Taylor, and his step-dad, Lt. Col. Richard F. Taylor, animal lovers from way back?

It isn't only that Spookie found himself a loving pal and a family, there's a corollary here that shows how far gratitude can go when it is carried by a large-hearted Weimaraner.

For those who don't already know, the Weimaraners are famous in Germany as hunting dogs. Over there they are called "grey ghosts" because of their pale, amber eyes. Hence the name Spookie for Brenden's dog. Not only is Spookie a hunting dog by tradition, but he's four years old and has had extensive hunting dog training. Among other things Weimaraners hate cats. So when Brenden brought home his dog, tremors ran through the Taylor house on Guadalupe and Fifth. Wasn't the family Siamese cat also a fighter by tradition and she about to deliver a nice handful of new kittens?

Keeping Spookie and the Siamese apart was a family problem. Tradition or no tradition, it was finally decided that Spookie must be introduced to the Siamese and her family.

Miracle. Spookie, hunter, cat-hater, not only accepted the Siamese, but she adopted the kittens and took on the job as alternate baby-sitter.

"As soon as the kittens were large enough," tells Cynthia Taylor, "so that Spookie could pick one up in her mouth without swallowing it, she'd carry them, one by one, to Brenden's bed, and there watch over them while they slept and mother Siamese had a breather. Often the kittens slept in the shelter of Spookie's wide, warm grey chest, until the mother was ready to feed them again, when Spookie allowed her to take them back, one by one, by the scruff of their neck. Such cooperation!"

"Ike" Eisenhower would love this story we feel sure. Wasn't he the first to bring a Weimaraner to this country from Germany?

Tantamount Treats Theatre Goers To Caviare Program

Two skilled and handsome young proteges of Paul Gregory, Richard Gray and Mayo Loizeaux, were presented by the Tantamount Theatre last weekend in an elegant, intelligent evening's entertainment.

Caviare To The General, as the show was called, proved to be a smorgasbord of short scenes and speeches from eight plays by Shakespeare, and it was a treat, indeed. Miss Loizeaux and Mr. Gray, simply but strikingly costumed and using only two benches —plus imaginative lighting— to dress the bare stage, brought to each of their thirteen selections an impressive command of technique as well as high style and, often, high humor. One of the happiest and most original was a variation of the familiar balcony scene from Romeo and Juliet as it might have come across in Shakespeare's day, with boy actors—the one a Cockney, the other a North Country lad; the lovely Miss Loizeaux quite undid the audience with her "Ow, Row-me-ow" and "Wot's in a nyme . . . "

Other standouts included her skittish but sensitive interpretation of the mad Ophelia, the charming scene between King Henry and Katherine of France (Henry V), the verbal dueling of Beatrice and Benedick (Much Ado About Nothing), and Launcelot Gobbo's argument with his conscience (The Merchant of Venice). That both players have the stature for tragedy was demonstrated in scenes from Macbeth and Richard III; however Mr. Gray's impersonations of Hamlet and Othello were somewhat flawed by too-swinging gestures and imperfect diction. For the most part, Miss Loizeaux and Mr. Gray performed with clarity, wit, and finesse, and we congratulate the Tantamount for bringing them here again. Both appeared last season in Christopher Fry's A Phoenix Too Frequent which shared billing with Agnes Moorehead's one-woman show at the Wharf Theatre; all three will be featured in Paul Gregory's newest production, an adaptation of S. N. Behrman's Duveen, scheduled for a Fall opening in San Francisco.

Meanwhile, the Tantamount has another treat for this weekend and next, August 4-5 and 11-12; a return appearance of the Peninsula's Ben Small in a new one-man show called The British Lion Roars With Laughter, a compendium of comedy from Dickens to music hall turns. As usual, curtain is at 8:40, preceded by complimentary coffee in the Tantamount's charming outdoor court —V. S.

Roy Martin

Royden Martin, Carmel Valley rancher who had lived all his life in this area, died on Tuesday morning in his home on the Carmel Valley Road three days before his seventy-ninth birthday.

Mr. Martin was born on August 4, 1882, at the Mission Ranch pioneered by his parents, John and Elizabeth Martin, who came from Canada to settle here almost a century ago. His life spanned an era during which this region changed from a rural farming community to present urban and suburban development.

He attended Bay School at the mouth of San Jose Creek. His father was one of the first trustees of the school which in its early years was a social center for the families of this community. Mr. Martin, his brothers and sister, often forded the Carmel River during the winter months on their way to school.

As a young man, Mr. Martin settled in Carmel Valley and spent the rest of his life on the ranch he developed about five miles from town. His wife, Metta S. Martin, died on October 22, 1959.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Stephen Grant, and two sons, Royden Martin, Jr., and Jack Martin, all of Carmel; a sister, Mrs. Robert Leidig of Carmel; and a brother, Carmel Martin, Sr., of Monterey; also nine grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Funeral services were held this morning in the Paul Funeral Chapel in Pacific Grove with the Reverend David Hill, rector of All Saints' Episcopal Church, officiating. Pall bearers were Roy E. Meadows, Roy E. Meadows, Jr., Stanley McClurg, Leonard S. Williams, Fred Leidig, and Dr. J. J. Williams. Burial took place in the Martin family plot in Monterey Cemetery.

Progress Report On Nation Wide Fight Against Billboards

California Roadside Council, in the summer issue of its bulletin, provides the following summary of nation, state and Monterey County billboard controll legislation:

"Nationwide, this was a great year for billboard-control legislation. Nearly one-half of all our states enacted such legislation, most of which was aimed to comply with the Federal Standards for billboard-control along new Interstate Highways. Even though the Federal Standards are liberal to local advertisers, they do establish a limit which will result in definite improvement. Regrettably, California is not one of the states whose newly enacted legislation is such as to conform to the Standards. Senator John F. McCarthy's bill, SB213, falls short of federal requirements if applied to Interstate Highways. Its enactment by the 1961 Legislature can best be regarded as a first step.

"June 30 of this year was to have ended the period during which states could qualify for the federal bonus of ½% by complying with the Federal Standards. Last spring, President Kennedy called for an extension of the time limit, in the hope that more states would comply. Roadside Councils and other organizations urged their representatives in Congress to press for such extension. Senator Maurine Neuberger of Oregon, widow of the late Richard Neuberger and his successor in the Senate, authored the appropriate measure as an amendment to the 1961 Federal Highway Bill. To our gratification, both California senators supported it, Senator Kuchel adding his name to the bill as a co-sponsor. The CRC had repeatedly urged this action, especially since passage of the Neuberger Bill would give California another chance to qualify for the bonus. After the bill had been shelved in committee (receiving high-handed and rough-shod treatment at the hands of the chairman, Senator Kerr of Oklahoma, long a supporter of the billboard interests) Senator Neuberger succeeded in marshaling sufficient support to bring the measure directly to the floor for Senate vote. It was passed by both houses of Congress. California now has another chance to meet the Federal Standards. Our Legislature, unsympathetic to such legislation up until now, may view the proposal in a new light, now that many states, including our neighbors, Oregon and Washington, have this year enacted such measures.

"California's New Billboard Law: The passage of Senator McCarthy's Senate Bill 213 is of some importance insofar as it broke the long deadlock on state legislation for billboard control. It is a weak measure, however, in the form in which it was passed, and its provision for billboards to be allowed within 1000 feet of any business establishment is inconsistent with scenic highway standards. Aware of this weakness but given hope by the bill's author that strengthening amendment was possible, the CRC, after serious debate, decided to support the measure. Amendment we hoped could be accomplished through author's cooperation, since an author's amendment is more readily acceptable than one proposed by a group outside the Legislature. In the final debate on the floor, the amendment we considered essential was proposed by the co-sponsor, Senator Fred Farr, but was opposed by McCarthy, who feared the amendment would jeopardize the bill's passage. Senator Farr threupon withdrew his support of the bill. The CRC did likewise, having made it clear from the first that our approval of the measure was contingent on its strengthening. Instead of having been strengthened, in its course through the Legislature, it had

I see her dance within a shadowed square
In purple veils, beside the closed bazaars;
Her veils twirl in the night, while jasmine scent
Pervades the breeze beneath the march of stars,
And then she moves beyond trellised stair,
As in a trance, in strange bewilderment
I watch her glimmering feet and follow after Past pathways dim beneath a sickle-moon.
Her veils have twirled around her languorously
As she bends down beside a dark lagoon
Where lotus flowers gleam ivory-white, I follow
And then I hear wind-blown derisive laughter
She drops her mask. I slowly turn to see
A face—a skull of bone with eyes gaunt-hollow.

SOUL—CRY

(For the American tenor, Charles O'Neill)

You give us more than tone that gleams
With purity and soaring power.
Yours is an elemental urge,
A soul-cry bursting into flower.

You give us moments we may store
In memory's luminous recess
Where we may find our inner selves
Lost in life's urgent stress.

SANTA CRUZ

(In absentia)

I close my eyes and now I see hibiscus blooming by the sea.
Ascend the cliff and there I view the ocean wide — intensely blue.

See ships with rainbow hues in sails, stand awed at redwood trees in vales.
They soar into the bright blue sky;
these trees, look higher—far than high.

Some day let me stand close to these
As wind blows in — a tempered breeze.

pointed out that the teacher load has climbed steadily from 21.75 in 1958-59 to 24.97 in 1961, allowing more efficiency and economy in operation of the schools.

One of the very few speakers from the floor was P. A. McCreery, president of the Carmel Youth Center board, who asked why a $3500 allocation previously allowed the center by the school board had been struck from this year's budget.

"Because no request was made," said Board President Dr. Grant Fletcher.

McCreery insisted the request, asking the $3500 be upped to $5000 had been forwarded to the board in April through the City Recreation Commission, but no one had heard of it. Also in the audience was Mrs. Hugh Smith, member of the Carmel Recreation Commission, who said she hadn't heard of it.

The recreation budget, for which there is a special tax, 10 cents limit, and the board has always set it at the limit, is $58,300 this year. Of this there was no allowance made for the usual $3500 school district contribution to the operation of the Carmel Youth Center.

Dr. Snyder moved to adopt the budget as presented except for a $500 decrease in the expected July 1 beginning balance of $209,091. The board voted to allow the figure to be made up from taxes rather than disturb the undistributed reserve, and the budget was passed unanimously.

Other business handled by the school board in last night's session included:

Awarding of the contract for construction of the River School addition to contractor Harold C. Geyer who submitted a winning bid of $13,930 for the work.

Raticifation of the employment of Mira Jordan and Karen Steinke at the high school and Morley Brown as second grade instructor at River School.

Awarding of the district's contract for boiler insurance to P. A. McCreery in the amount of $2,699.22 for a three-year policy.

Directing Superintendent Mitchell to complete negotiations for purchase of the Metz property for a proposed new school site. The The board is buying 12.175 acres for $27,410 but will probably have to build its own access road.

Hearing a letter from J. C. MacLennan to board member Dr. Newton in which the Carmel artist offered certain paintings to the district as gifts. (The board took no action on the letter pending a meeting with Mrs. MacLennan to review details of her offer.)

Granting approval to the superintendent's offering a contract to Outdoor Products company, who submitted the lowest quotation ($1,454) on fencing projects at Woods School and the high school.

Wilderness Of The West

A monthly column
By C. Edward Graves

30—SAT. EVE. POST ON CONSERVATION

In the July 8 issue of the Saturday Evening Post there is an article by John Bird on The Great Wilderness Fight. The reference is of course to the fight to pass the Wilderness Bill in Congress—a fight that has been going on for some five or six years and that now shows some signs of being successfully concluded.

The author presents both sides of the controversy but with considerably more space devoted to the arguments of the opponents than to those of the proponents. The attitude of the Sierra Club, which is in the forefront of the fight, is described in four short paragraphs, while two complete columns are devoted to the author's conversations with Pacific Northwest lumbermen and tree farmers. Actually tree farming has nothing to do whatsoever with the bill, since there is nothing in it that would affect tree farmers one way or another.

One of the most significant parts of the Post article, and one that comes home to Monterey County, is contained in the last paragraph. I shall quote it in full:

"In Washington, D.C., odds are fair that this Congress will pass a wilderness bill along the lines of S. 174. However, the experts aren't betting that this automatically will bring peace to the wilds. The next fight, some observers believe, will be between various breeds of outdoor addicts. On one side will be the rising swarm of vacationists and sportsmen who want to penetrate the back country, not on foot, but by jeep, mountain-climbing scooter, light plane or helicopter, and who want to take along chain saws to cut their wood, and outboard motors to push their canoes. And on the other side will be the strict preservationists who want to enjoy our beautiful wilderness sanctuaries in nature's own quiet. At this point, it's hard to say which side will win."

It's a comforting thought that there is a possibility that conservationists may win this next fight. Population pressure certainly makes the odds strongly against us. Here in Monterey County we are now engaged in one phase of this fight—that concerned with the mountain-climbing scooter. The tote-gotes, so-called, are one of this particular breed. The Pine Cone has given publicity to this threat. The Trails Conservation Committee under the active leadership of Francis Whitaker and David Hagemeyer has been blazing the way for similar committees in other parts of the state and country.

What so many people fail to realize is that it is impossible to enjoy wilderness by means of motorized vehicles of any kind, because the minute that access of this kind is provided or allowed, the wilderness disappears. Developments of one kind or another inevitably follow the advent of mechanized invasion and developments and wilderness are incompatible. So it becomes a question of how much of our primitive areas we are willing to give the protection that the Wilderness Bill is designed to give. The unjustified opposition to the completely harmless bill accentuates the nature of the fight that is looming on the conservation horizon.

Yet, located in a neighborhood of traditional "Carmel Charm." Beautiful new wall-to-wall carpeting, draperies and deluxe appliances included in the price of $28,500.

ARE YOU DISAPPOINTED because you cannot find a view home in Carmel for the price you had set as the maximum you should pay? Perhaps you are not aware that a house with the same view can be had elsewhere on the Peninsula for less money. One, located on the crest of the hill in Old Monterey, was built by Comstock Associates of Carmel and has many features suggestive of Carmel . . . grape-stake fenced garden, secluded patios, broad sundeck and a BREATH-TAKING VIEW. Big living room, two bedrooms, modern features including new forced air heating system, new nylon carpeting . . . everything absolutely perfect condition and only $23,750.

DO YOU KNOW ABOUT DEL REY OAKS? A quiet little residential area tucked away from noise and traffic where the sun shines brightly on many days that are dull and foggy elsewhere on the Peninsula. A neighborhood of proud home-owners who take delight in their pretty gardens. An ideal location for a retired couple wanting a smaller house on a level lot. And, there is one available . . . a cozy, neat two bedroom cottage in perfect condition for only $15,750.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

Two or three weeks ago this library received a collection of autographed books from Mrs. Pauline Tolfree, who has been assembling them for many years. There were 74 autographed books in the gift, and this is enough to give us a generous start on an autograph collection. They are catalogued and shelved now and may be examined by any known regular patron of this library. It goes without saying that they are shelved in a locked case and do not circulate. No marks have been made on the books themselves and the only place they appear in our card catalog is an alphabetical listing behind a guide card AUTOGRAPH COLLECTION. They have been shelved by number, which is known as permanent place shelving, and any additions to the collection will be assigned a shelf number and added. And this is what we hope will happen, that other people owning books which have been autographed, will decide to give them to the library. We hope that this library may some day have an outstanding collection of such books. Naturally enough we are not stamping our name on the books nor adding class numbers to the non-fiction, because the minute that happens to a book, its value drops with a dismal thud. Most of these books were signed by their authors, but some were signed by the illustrators, and some by the famous actors who appeared in the stage versions. Included among the latter are Maude Adams, Julia Marlowe, and Joseph Jefferson. This library is proud to have such a fine collection.

We have three new five-pound novels for this week. They are Rizpah by Charles Israel, The Edge of Sadness by Edwin O'Connor, and Rembrandt by Gladys Schmitt. Rizpah reads like a super-colossal wide-screen production in glorious technicolor and we hope it makes it. It is interesting and will hold the reader's attention for 534 pages.

The Edge of Sadness is by the Edwin O'Connor who wrote The Last Hurrah. This one is different, more mature, less plot and more character probing. Rembrandt, by Gladys Schmitt is the result of much research, which will pay off for her because it is the July selection of a well known book club. This is fictionized biography and the author tries to describe truly the conditions in Rembrandt's time, and the terrific struggle he had to become known and to be accepted. There are those readers who object to too much fiction with their biography. They dislike to have an author put words in the mouths of real characters, and more than that, they dislike to have the thoughts of the characters explained and their motives traced. This Gladys Schmitt has done. If taking liberties is repugnant to you as a reader, better skip this one. It is so large it will make your arms ache anyway.

A smaller thing is The Wilderness Stone by Robert Nathan. This is the old Nathan, writing of a love so strong it transcends time and reality, writing of a relationship that is fragile and delicate. A sure antidote to the blood-and-guts-and sex novels of today, and a welcome change appreciated by many readers.

Always a feast or a famine! This week the good books are mostly fiction, last week it was just the opposite. Something for everyone if no one is impatient.

Visitors From Sacramento

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Evanson of Sacramento visited Carmel this week. They operate a public relations business in the State capital.

Letters . . .

Carmel, Calif.
Aug. 1, 1961

Editor, Carmel Pine Cone:

Mr. Jack Belangee's letter in last week's Pine Cone about the use of motor scooters on the national forest trails contains an excellent boomerang. He wrote: "Why should there be a law banning tote gotes from the rest of the forests just because of a selfish few who don't know what they're talking about?"

I should like to suggest that it is he who represents the "selfish few." He claims to represent "a lot of tote gote owners." It would be interesting to know just how many there are in this "lot." I would say that there might be perhaps one tote-gote owner out of every one hundred users of the national forest trails. Who then are the "selfish few?"

I am sure that the 240 members of the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society are almost all opposed to the use of motorized transportation on any of the national forest trails—no exceptions. Add to that the members of our other two active conservation groups, the Nature Conservancy and the Point Lobos League, and we have perhaps 500 active opponents of this policy in Monterey County. This does not take into account at all a large part of the general public who are backing us on this issue.

If we, then, are a "selfish few," which might perhaps mean one out of every 100, there must be 50,000 tote-goters on the Monterey Peninsula alone, if Mr. Belangee's statement is correct. If that is true, the national forest trails will soon be completely destroyed by mechanical erosion.

Let's keep these trails for the purpose for which they were intended originally—foot travel and horseback riding.

Very sincerely,
Alva L. Lamont.

If you see a PG&E lineman with this strange-looking gun, he's stringing power lines—not hunting. Canyons, dense trees, streams and other obstacles slow up power line construction. But not with a modern line-throwing gun! It can shoot a light line more than 400 feet over obstructions—then the power line is attached and hauled through otherwise impassable sections quickly—and economically. Saving time and construction costs with efficient methods like this is another example of creative engineering at Pacific Gas and Electric Company as it builds ahead for a state on-the-grow.

Art On The Peninsula

An exhibition of paintings and drawings by Roland Hall will open on Sunday at the Coast Gallery, Big Sur, and remain on display until August 25. A preview and reception will be held at the gallery on Saturday from 2:00 until 7:00 o'clock.

E. Cashion MacLennan has received notice from Edward Lynam, exhibit supervisor of arts for the Sacramento State Fair, that three of four lithographs she submitted have been chosen by the selection jury for exhibition. However, as regulations allow no more than two prints by any artist to be shown, and as the jury cannot be called upon to act again, Mr. Lynam asked Mrs. MacLennan to select the two prints she prefers to be hung at the Fair.

Alice Jean Small has a one-man show of paintings through August at the Solarium Gallery in Holman's Department Store in Pacific Grove. She is a member of the National Society of Women Artists, the National League of Pen Women, Northwest Water Color Society and Northwest Printmakers.

Born in Idaho, Alice Jean Small, M.F.A., is a graduate of the University of Washington School of Fine Arts and received her master's degree at the same school. She did postgraduate work at Cranbrook Academy of Arts, Chicago, the Chicago School of Design, Alabama Polytechnic Institute, University of California, University of Havana and University of Tokyo. She also studied at Cornish School and Derbyshire School of Art, under Amedee Ozenfant of France and Emilio Amero, Mexican lithographer, Fernand Leger of Paris, Alexander Archipenko and Saito of Japan.

She has taught in schools and universities in the United States and for two years in the Far Eastern Theatre for the U.S. Army's department of crafts.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

The spiritual foundation of divine healing will be emphasized at Christian Science services Sunday.

Included in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Spirit" is the account in Matthew of the healing by Christ Jesus of the man with the withered hand.

One of the citations to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy (p. 51) describes the basis of Jesus' healing mission in these words: "Jesus was unselfish. His spirituality separated him from sensuousness, and caused the selfish materialist to hate him; but it was this spirituality which enabled Jesus to heal the sick, cast out evil, and raise the dead."

The Golden Text is from Zechariah (4): "Not by might, nor by power but by my spirit saith the Lord of hosts."

Mr. and Mrs. James Lloyd Womble (above) prepare to greet guests at the reception following their marriage last Saturday. They will return from a honeymoon in Southern California to live in Carmel. Mrs. Womble is the former Patricia Lucille Coleman, daughter of Mrs. Clyde Marshall Coleman of Carmel Valley and the late Mr. Coleman. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James Lloyd Womble of Pebble Beach.

The ceremony took place at noon in Carmel Mission Basilica with Father Macklin of Santa Clara University celebrating the Nuptial Mass. Tall standards of white chrysanthemums and gladioli framed the bridal couple as they knelt before the altar. Sprays of white carnations tied with white satin ribbons identified family pews. Bud Iverson, organist, played the wedding music and Ave Maria during the ceremony at the request of the bride.

She was given in marriage by her brother, Donald W. Coleman. Lace appliques, re-embroidered with seed pearls, outlined the portrait neckline and embellished the billowing skirt of her white peau de soie gown which had three-quarter length sleeves, a chapel train and a row of tiny buttons extending down the back. A seed pearl coronet held her waist-length veil and she carried a prayer book adorned with white orchids and a cascade of bouvardia. Her pearl necklace and earrings were a gift from the bridegroom, and she tucked a silver sixpence into one of her shoes.

Her maid of honor was claudette Koepp of Reno, and bridesmaids were Danel Walker of Pacific Grove, Barbara Berry of Gilroy, and Georgeann Kilpatrick of Pebble Beach, a cousin of the bridegroom. They were dressed alike in bell-skirted coral and pale yellow flower printed frocks of polished cotton overlaid with chiffon. Their face veils fell from coral flowers of the same material as their gowns and they wore coral shoes. The maid of honor's rose bouquet was yellow, and those of the other attendants coral-toned.

Harvey Kilpatrick of Pebble Beach was the best man for his cousin. The ushers were Robert Shoemaker, a student at the University of Nevada, William White of Carmel and a San Jose State College student, also Robert Chenu, another cousin of the bridegroom from Sacramento who attends Stanford University.

Mrs. Coleman was attired for her daughter's marriage in a two-piece Dior blue crepe dress, a tiny satin hat in two tones of blue, matching blue shoes and a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Womble, the mother of the bridegroom, wore a banana yellow pure silk shantung sheath dress with a harmonizing flower and leaf veiled hat, matching bag and shoes and white orchid corsage.

Arrangements of white chrysanthemums, gladioli and carnations decorated the Womble home in Pebble Beach where the wedding reception was held. The bridal couple received before the living room fireplace. A cutwork cloth covered the table on which stood the five-tiered wedding cake between silver candelabra, and a silver urn filled with white gladioli decorated the champagne table spread with an embroidered cloth.

The bride changed for traveling to a beige Italian knit dress, a white hat and brown alligator shoes and bag. When the young couple returns from a three-weeks trip to Santa Barbara and Coronado they will live on Sterling Way.

They are both graduates of Junipero Memorial High School. The bride is also a recent graduate of O'Connor Hospital School for Nurses in San Jose. Her husband continued his education at Hartnell College and is now associated in business with his father in Carmel. He is a member of the Stillwater Yacht Club, noted for his sailing prowess. Other Mercury class skippers from Sacramento, San Francisco, Merced, Santa Cruz and San Jose were among the 300 wedding guests.

Out-of-town relatives included the bridegroom's great-aunt, Mrs. W. H. Kyne of Sacramento.

Blue Jay Nursery School Now Going To College, Flying

they are led through a daily program of original music (with emphasis on the original; they make up their own songs), painting, clay modeling, snack time, story reading, play acting and free outdoor recreation in the wide yard where bugs and squirrels can be searched out and where old-fashioned rope swings dangle from good, climbable trees.

Over all activity Miss Jay patiently spreads the balm of selflessness and common courtesy. They learn from the example she sets them, and from mild suggestions on her part that soon become the rule.

Emphasis is placed also on speaking ability. A Blue Jay student becomes able to get up on his feet, say what he has to say articulately and imaginatively, and then quit and sit down when there is nothing left to say. It's a challenge many an adult would fail.

And though the structure of the schedule is there to fall back on, it is never so rigid that on a sunny, sparkling day, the whole group can't pile in Miss Jay's car for a junket to a friend's orchard to pick apples from under the trees, or to the dunes to picnic, or perhaps to a museum or the wharf in Monterey.

Mrs. Tuthill, a sister of the late Bill Askew, is a native of Cincinnati, Ohio, and came to Carmel in 1919 by way of the San Joaquin Valley, with her family. Like so many others, the Askews came for a vacation and simply couldn't bring themselves to leave.

A graduate in education of San Jose State College, she taught kindergarten and first grade at Sunset School, when it was an eighth grade school, and later in Monterey before opening her first Blue Jay School in 1942.

During the war she had as many as 25 students, and a staff of two teachers. Also about this time, she conducted an all-day class. In normal times, however, she limits the group to ten and takes sole charge herself. However, her heavy wartime duties brought her a citation of merit from the California State Assembly.

The ten-child operation places her now under county jurisdiction. She prefers the smaller operation, (though she once added a first-grade curriculum on a private basis at the request of a parent), because "ten children are about as much as anyone can accommodate at one time."

"It always startles me when I hear from one of my former Blue Jays and discover they've grown up," Miss Jay admits. A year ago this happened with a bang when Nan Easterbrook, granddaughter of Mrs. Joseph Stilwell and a Mount Holyoke College student, did her own flying in a Cessna plane to the Peninsula.

It happens recurrently, every time a Blue Jay marries. On the old rosters at Blue Jay School appear names of a number of grandchildren and great grandchildren of famous Americans, including those of Casy and Harvey Morgan, whose father is a grandson of financier J. Pierpont Morgan; the grandchildren of poet Robinson Jeffers, Stephen and Faith Morrow of the Dwight Morrow family, and many others, almost all of them grown and "flown" by now.

One famous descendant who attended Blue Jay School bore the name of her forebear, suffragette, Lucy Stone.

Songs sung at the school are heard at no other schools. That's because they are composed by students and painstakingly set down by Mrs. Jay.

An art exhibit by Blue Jay students is usually hanging in the school room, and sometimes is so unusual it will get a showing in a downtown Carmel spot. Viewing one such show, an observer refused to believe it had been accomplished by three to four year old artists. But it was, all right.

"I try to bring out the originality in children when they're at the only age where it's really unaffected, before it gets swallowed up by imitation," Miss Jay says.

Her near-20 years makes Miss Jay's school the oldest in Carmel under the same teacher. And what of the next twenty years? Miss Jay has a habit of announcing at the close of each school year that she intends to quit teaching. She never does, however, perhaps because of the oncoming class of Blue Jays depending on her to shepherd them through difficult times to their arrival at kindergarten age.

Her love for nursery school work and for the children themselves appears to be the kind that moves mountains, and makes the world go around.

Progress Report On Nation Wide Fight Against Billboards

been further weakened by amendment. We regret having had to withdraw suport, for Senator McCarthy has been a strong spokesman for our cause, and he doubtless felt justified in his present position. Though disappointed that the bill was enacted into law in a form of which we could not approve, we did not consider it a measure on which we should ask for a veto. It has a number of good points, and it may be regarded as a small first step in the general direction of billboard control.

"Billboard Control in the Courts: The proper legal basis for billboard control has been under consideration recently in test cases, both in this state and elsewhere. In Wisconsin, a new state law formulated on the basis of the Federal Standards was challenged in the Circuit Court. The law was upheld. A similar decision has been rendered in the New Hampshire State Supreme Court. The essence of these judicial opinions is that billboard control is a proper exercise of the police power, based either on aesthetic considerations involving the public welfare, or on considerations of traffic safety. In California, however, there has been a set-back. In the Superior Court of Monterey County, a certain portion of the County Zoning Ordinance, prohibiting billboards in unclassified areas, has been ruled unconstitutional. The written decision has not yet been released. When it is, it will be discussed and its practical results analyzed in a forthcoming issue of the Bulletin. We will also discuss in detail the favorable decisions in Wisconsin and New Hampshire. Meanwhile the Monterey County Counsel's office is favorably inclined toward an appeal, pending approval of this course, by the Board of Supervisors.

"Information sites— Solution to a problem: The most valid objection to elimination of roadside signs concerns the providing of information needed by the motorist en route—information on motorist services, such as motels, restaurants and service stations. As a solution to this problem, the Federal Standards for Interstate Highways would permit official information sites. In lighted roadside areas, indicated in advance by official signs, the motorist could pull out of the traffic lanes and look over a roster of local establishments posted on standardized panels. Opponents of billboard-control have claimed that the cost of such sites would be prohibitive. We doubt it. Existing frontage roads for roadside business could be used with little cost except for the construction and lighting of the panels. Another objection raised by opponents is that stopping for information would foster hold-ups. But why should this be true any more than a stop for gas? We believe that the information site is the logical solution to the roadside sign problem. Today more than 20 states, by enacting laws in line with the Federal Standards, presumably approve the information site system. Why not be alert to its possibilities in California? Why persist in dragging our feet? We suggest that any county, city or business organization interested in trying out such a pilot project consult the CRC on the processes involved. We have reason to believe that the State Division of Highways will cooperate."

was to wait until a study had been made of the college master plan to ascertain what facilities will be needed, also find out from a land use survey if any additional land will be needed.

The estimated income in last night's budget is based on 90 percent of the assessed valuation of the college district.. Actual income will be increased by $43,000 when tax monies are paid. This sum will be placed in the undistributed reserve to meet demands of the 1962-63 budget when the college district will lack tuition revenue from Peninsula out of district students as both Carmel and Pacific Grove districts are now members of Monterey Junior College District. Also placed in the undistributed reserve was the sum of $117,805; and in the general reserve $15,000. The college district will, therefore, have a backlog of $175,805 for 1962-63 operation.

The college board discussed at length last night the problem of transfer agreements with other California junior college districts. At present the number of Monterey Peninsula transfer students attending other state junior colleges is in the ratio of ten to 90 transfer students from other college districts enrolled at Monterey Peninsula College. The local college receives no tuition payments, only state junior college apportionment for the education of these students. Trustees decided last night this was an unfair burden on the local district and instructed Mr. Huber to inform applicants that as of last night no transfers, other than those already approved, would be accepted until a report was made on this situation at the end of the fall semester. This decision does not apply to Hartnell, Cabrillo and San Benito junior colleges, however.

Other matters acted upon last night were to grant a $3,2666.74 contract to Laboratory Equipment Company of San Francisco for the purchase of microscopes; approve campus parking and traffic regulations; employ Dr. Fred Fry as college and team physician; allow a spring semester leave of absence to Miss Ruth VanVlaardingen, counselor and English instructor, for travel in Europe and Asia; permit the Monterey City Schools District a lease agreement for the use of maintenance shop area on the college campus; set a calendar of holidays for classified service persons during 1961-62.

Letter...

Carmel, California
July 17, 1961

Editor The Pine Cone:

To all the gentlemen connected with the day-by-day and week-by-week handling of the Little League games we want to send our gratitude.

From April until well into July these unsung heroes of the baseball diamond are responsible for providing much enjoyable entertainment for the spectators as well as invaluable team participation and lessons in sportsmanship for the boys.

The duties of the umpires and the coaches are innumerable and require long hours of concentration, work and good humor.

As parents we want to express our appreciation for all that is done for our sons by these dedicated souls.

And a special thank you to Newt Goodrich of Boys' Town and his assistant Dick Rohr who have won the respect and admiration of all on their team.

Yours,
Mr. and Mrs. John D. Campbell.

MRS. MUSTARD INJURES HIP

Members of the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department took Mrs. James A. Mustard of Pebble Beach to the Community Hospital on Saturday morning, 9:55 o'clock, in the Red Cross ambulance. She fell in a store at the corner of Ocean Avenue and Dolores street. Her husband, this morning, reported that Mrs. Mustard suffered a hip fracture and is a patient in the Community Hospital.

This intersection is right above the steps which are also a few feet from the blind turn around the Stewart home which juts to the edge of the roadway, causing drivers in the right hand lane to get as far to the edge of the road as they dare.

Drivers going either way are so occupied they miss seeing children at the top of the steps.

We mentioned this hazard before after a three-year-old darted ahead of his mother carrying a smaller child. The mother's cries prevented a motorist from hitting the boy as he clambered over the high top step.

Pedestrian lane markings and approach warnings would benefit both motorists and persons using the steps. It's an equal hazard.
